

Published: 17 February 2012

Region: Worldwide

UNESCO has published a new good practice guide, a collection of case studies in community media, intended to provide inspiration and support for those engaged in community media advocacy as well as to raise awareness and understanding of community media among policy makers and other stakeholders.

The collection is focused on electronic media including radio, television, Internet and mobile. It is global in spread, with examples from 30 countries, but primarily drawn from developing countries.

The handbook is free and is available here .