The UN Alliance of Civilizations and the BMW Group have launched The Intercultural Innovation Award in order to select and support the most innovative grassroots projects around the world that are advancing cross-cultural understanding and cooperation.

The deadline for applications is 16 October 2011.

The Award will acknowledge brave initiatives that dare to think outside the box, rethinking intercultural work and making an important use of new methods to promote intercultural understanding and cooperation.

The Award represents a unique platform for civil society organizations committed to the promotion of cultural diversity and understanding.
