

dcern.org

Keywords: International, English, media, radio, communication, development, education

This portal considers five key sectors and suggests ways in which incorporating good communication practice can enhance the delivery of development outcomes. Although the importance of communications has been recognised for several years now the development community have recently recognised the need to demonstrate the impact of this. This portal brings together materials that demonstrate what does (and does not) work.