RSE & Development aims to provide information on RSE (Company Social Responsibility) in emerging and developing countries, to contribute to a better social and environmental impact of corporations following the framework of the Millennium Objectives for Development.

They research the web regularly and provide news of both the negative and the positive social and environmental impacts of corporations and companies. They also take it upon themselves to provide solutions brought by the various actors in RSE (companies, NGO's, governments, international institutions etc..) to the problems raised.
